REPLY TO OPPOSITION TO NOTICE
OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR EXTENSION OF TIME

Date: November 10, 2021
Time: 1:00 p.m.
Place: Courtroom 5, 4th floor
Magistrate Judge: Nathanael M. Cousins

1 Defendants respectfully respond to Plaintiff's Opposition filed October 1, 2021, Dkt. 92, 2 and state as follows:

3 Defendants filed a simple, routine Motion to Extend Time to Respond to the Complaint
4 and requested up to and including October 29, 2021 to respond. In their Motion, they met the 5 requirements of the Local Rule by providing: (1) the reasons for shortening time (the recent 6 engagement of new counsel); (2) the efforts Defendants made to obtain a stipulation to the time
7 change (the phone calls and email requests made to counsel); (3) the substantial harm or prejudice
8 that would occur if the Court did not change the time (Defendants potential inability to consider 9 and respond to the Complaint); ... (5) all previous time modifications in the case, whether by 10 stipulation or Court order (the several stipulations between counsel are listed); and (6) the effect 11 the requested time modification would have on the schedule for the case (at this early stage of the 12 proceedings, the effect would be minimal, if any). Plaintiff's Opposition fails to address any of 13 these requirements, instead taking the Court through tangents that are not relevant to the present
14 Motion. For these reasons alone, Defendants respectfully request the Motion be granted.

15 Even as to those tangents, however, Plaintiff's Opposition provides the Court with 16 incomplete information and an incomplete record. Prior to Culhane Meadows' retention, 17 Plaintiff's counsel had expressly agreed with Defendants' predecessor counsel to an extension of 18 the time of Defendants' responses to the Complaint. This agreement is actually memorialized in 19 an attachment to the email that Plaintiff included as Ex. A to the declaration in support of its 20 Opposition but Plaintiff failed to include that attachment as part of Ex. A. Defendants now 21 provide that attachment (sans the email that the Court already has as Plaintiff's Ex. A) in a 22 declaration supporting this reply. See Declaration of Millicent S. Meroney in support of Reply, 23 October 1, 2021 ("Meroney Reply Decl.") ¶ 1, id. Ex. 1 (attachment from email between 24 Plaintiff's counsel and Defendants' predecessor counsel memorializing said agreement). In 25 particular, Plaintiff's counsel stated: "Given the gap in time from the service date and your receipt 26 of the documents, we'll agree to a reasonable extension. Once we get the proofs of service and 27 you've assessed the service, how about we meet and confer over timing...." Id.

1        Though Plaintiff's counsel had already expressly made this agreement with Defendants'
2 predecessor counsel, it appears Plaintiff may be seeking to take advantage of the substitution of 3 counsel to retract a previously agreed extension and raise the issue of default. Plaintiff argues 4 that "Although there was a delay in Plaintiff's receipt (and subsequent filing) of the Certificate of 5 Service from the Central Authority, Temujin Cayman's response time ran from service on July 7, 6 2021, not from the filing of proof of service." Opp. at 2:22-24. First, whether or not service was 7 effective is not before the Court. Moreover, Plaintiff overlooks that, according to the Stipulation
8 Setting Schedule and Extending Time to Respond and Continuing Case Management Conference
9 and Modified Order, April 21, 2021, Temujin Cayman's response was in fact due "within 30 days 10 in the event that service is deemed effective." Dkt. 44 at 3:15-16. Even if it were assumed that 11 service was "deemed effective" on Temujin Cayman on July 7, no response would have been due 12 until August 6, by which point opposing counsel had already agreed to a reasonable extension of 13 time to respond once the proofs of service came in. Meroney Reply Decl. Ex. 1 ("Given the gap in 14 time from the service date and your receipt of the documents, we'll agree to a reasonable
15 extension. Once we get the proofs of service and you've assessed the service, how about we meet 16 and confer over timing" (emphasis added)).

17        Plaintiff also argues that although the parties "discussed [in fact agreed to] a reasonable 18 extension, [] the latter never reached out to finalize the terms and never sought relief from the 19 Court." However, as a confirmation email from Defendants' predecessor counsel shows, the 20 parties agreed that only after Defendant's counsel assessed the service issues would the parties
21 then "submit a schedule for responding and briefing." Plaintiff did not file its proofs of service in 22 their entirety until September 20, so there would have been little opportunity to assess service 23 issues before then. Moreover, and more importantly, nothing in any correspondence among 24 counsel dictated that the agreement among counsel had a particular expiration date or that it was 25 Temujin Cayman's unilateral duty to reopen the dialogue once the proofs of service came in. As 26 importantly, prior to Culhane Meadows being substituted as counsel, it does not appear Plaintiff
27 ever asserted Temujin Cayman was in default nor does Plaintiff argue otherwise.
28

1 Without seeking to address every other allegation in Defendants' opposition, especially 2 those which are not germane or do not warrant response, Defendants offer the following 3 responses to Plaintiff's "first," "fifth," and "last" points.

4 In Plaintiff's "first" point, counsel seems to suggest it agreed to a stipulation to continue
5 the Case Management Conference primarily as a professional courtesy. In fact, however, neither
6 party (including Plaintiff) had yet met-and-conferred under Rule 26(f). A Rule 26(f) conference
7 must occur at least 21 days before a Rule 16 scheduling conference. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(f). Absent
8 a time machine to go back two weeks, Plaintiff's counsel himself could not have met his Rule
9 26(f) obligation to meet-and-confer on September 15, 2021 -- 21 days prior to the Case
10 Management Conference that until then was scheduled on October 6, 2021. To meet his Rule
11 26(f) obligation, the Conference needed to be pushed back which would push the Rule 26(f) date
12 back along with it. Nor had the parties even started drafting a Case Management Statement, 13 which was due September 29, 2021, the very date the parties stipulated to request a continuance 14 of the Conference. Therefore, Plaintiff was in as much need of the continuance as Defendants.
15 The mutual benefit that Plaintiff gained by the stipulation, contrary to Plaintiff's spurious "first"
16 point about it being a courtesy to Defendants, is also noteworthy also because in its "fifth" point,
17 Plaintiff seeks to allege that an extension in the state case was, in supposed contrast, mutually 18 beneficial. (In fact, as Defendant has already shown, it was Plaintiff who sought the extension in 19 the state case).

20 Plaintiff's "last" point is not a point at all; rather it is a laundry list of requests that are 21 outside the scope of what is permitted in an Opposition, do not respond to the Motion , and 22 should not be considered. Plaintiff's counsel has not met-and-conferred about whether it would be 23 necessary or productive to schedule a mini-conference (to talk about issues solely of apparent 24 importance to Plaintiff but perhaps not Defendants) before the Case Management Conference 25 currently scheduled for November 17. Any such idea for a mini, ad hoc conference should be first 26 fully vetted between the parties and then (and only then) could it perhaps be made the subject of a
27 stipulation or motion; it is certainly not appropriate to tack such a unilateral request onto the end
28

1 of an opposition to an extension of time. That said, should the Court find it helpful, Defendants
2 stand ready to appear for oral argument, a mini-conference or whatever the Court requests.

3 Absent this Court granting Defendants' motion, Defendants will be prejudiced, as 4 explained in Defendants' motion. Defendants request that the Court reject Plaintiff's arguments
5 and grant the requested motion for extension of time.

6
7 Respectfully submitted,

8 DATED: October 1, 2021
